

Subject: PRINCETON ALERT: Delayed Opening Main Campus
Date: Thursday, May 1, 2014 at 6:48:03 AM Eastern Daylight Time
From: Princeton Alert
To: Igor Zivkovic

Because many roads in the region are closed or traffic is slowed by flooding, Princeton University will delay opening today until 10 a.m. Classes will be held as scheduled.

Only employees in critical or essential roles should report to work or stay on for shifts requiring them to work before 10 a.m.

The Frist Campus Center and dining halls remain open.

Campus libraries except Mudd Manuscript Library are open as scheduled.

Updates will be posted on the University homepage and on the SNOW line, (609)-258-SNOW, as soon as new information is available.

This e-mail has been sent to you by PRINCETON UNIVERSITY as part of our alert notification system. To learn more about the system or if you do not wish to receive further notifications, please visit <http://web.princeton.edu/sites/emergency/PTENS-FAQ.html>. Thank you.