

8*>?7@12 Princeton University Closing Early Because of Storm

A%172 Monday, January 26, 2015 at 12:27:04 PM Eastern Standard Time

B+" ; 2 Princeton Alert

9"2 Igor Zivkovic

Because of severe weather, Princeton University will close at 3:30 p.m. today for non-essential personnel. Only employees in essential services roles should stay on or report to work for shifts requiring them to work after 3:30 p.m. Those arriving after that time should park in either the North or West garages. Students are on break and classes are not in session. The Frist Campus Center will remain open until 10 p.m. Whitman College dining hall will be open for dinner from 5 p.m. until 8 p.m. TigerTransit buses will end regular service at 5 p.m., when the Campus Circulator will begin service and run on a limited schedule until 8:00 p.m. Campus libraries will remain open. Athletic and recreation facilities will be closed. University officials will continue to monitor the storm. An update will be posted by 10 p.m. on the University homepage and on the SNOW line, (609)-258-SNOW. Members of the University community can manage how they receive non-emergency messages, including weather-related notifications, via the Princeton Telephone and Email Notification System (PTENS) by following the instructions here: <http://emergency.princeton.edu/node/482>. PTENS allows authorized Princeton officials to send information simultaneously to individuals via landline phones, cellular phones, text messages and e-mail.